Responsible to	Digital Education Manager
Accountable to	Head of eLearning Unit
Responsible for	N/A
Liases with	Managers in the eLearning Unity, Staff across the Centre for Technology in Education, Academic Staff, Administrators, Registry staff and students.

Overall purpose of job

The successful candidate will join our E-Learning Unit which is dedicated to the delivery of high-quality technology-assisted services aimed at curriculum transformation, student experience and engagement, and online education. The Learning Technologist post is a key post within the eLearning Unit of the Centre for Technology in Education which requires experience in blended and online education, and educational technologies, and involves the development of educational resources and the formatting of such resources to ensure that they adhere to quality requirements. You will be working with academics, learning technologists and other subject matter experts to support the design, development, and operation of courses for online and blended learning. You will understand and apply good practice in learning design and online pedagogy to support the design of engaging online courses and teaching resources.

You will have an awareness of all the technology provided by the institution and how it can be applied for teaching and learning. You will be innovative and able to source appropriate web-based tools and resources to support learning needs.

You will also provide leadership, expertise and support in the learning design process and use your knowledge of learning technology, and awareness of learning design methodologies to support the design of courses, modules and learning resources. In addition, you will champion the effective use of learning technology for teaching and learning at all levels and be a source of support and training.

1. Main Duties and Responsibilities

Learning Technology

- Support and lead (as appropriate) the business-as-usual operation of St George's learning technologies. You may be asked to take a specific lead in one or more areas such as: Digital Accessibility, development of resources (such PBL, CBL, and TBL cases), design and development of Massive Open Online Courses (MOOCs), and management of filming for educational usage (not exhaustive).
- Support and lead (as appropriate) the implementation and embedding of the University's education principles by working with colleagues to develop module templates and good practice guidance for the creation of learning content, for use by academic and clinical teaching staff.
- Design and deliver training to academic staff and students in the effective use of learning technology for teaching and learning in various modes e.g. blended and online.
- To provide up-to-date knowledge of and guidance on digital accessibility guidelines and legislation for educational content, advising project teams and ensuring adherence to these guidelines.
- Work collaboratively with colleagues across the Centre to lead on and/or support priority projects.

Learning Design

- Support and lead (as appropriate) the implementation and embedding of the University's education principles by working with colleagues to develop module templates and good practice guidance for the creation of learning content, for use by academic and clinical teaching staff.
- Work with academic and administrative staff to ensure that online learning resources and activities are integrated into the curriculum and aligned with learning objectives.
- Support academic staff in designing course materials for student-centred learning by recommending and sourcing appropriate learning technology tools to support active learning, as well as leading the delivery of training sessions required to support staff.

General

- Where required, lead learning design and technology user groups.
- Contribute to general planning.
- Undertake personal development activities appropriate to the post.

- Fulfil other duties appropriate to the role.
- Work collaboratively with other learning technologists across the centre to lead/support priority projects.
- Provide regular reports and updates as required.

It is expected that staff working with St George's School of Health and Medical Sciences, will be involved in our mentoring and tutoring activities, as appropriate, as well as supporting admissions, student recruitment and access and widening participation activities (MMI interviews, Open Days, school visits, clearing etc) where applicable. All academic staff are expected to act as a personal tutor.

You are also expected to undertake other activities appropriate to your grade as directed by your manager. This job description reflects the present requirements of the post. As duties and responsibilities change, the job description will be reviewed and amended in consultation with the post holder from time to time. City St George's, University of London aims to provide opportunities for all its employees to develop the skills required to be successful in their role and to further develop their careers.

St George's School of Health & Medical Sciences, University of London, is committed to the San Francisco Declaration on Research Assessment (DORA) principles.

2. Special Factors

The role holder may be required to travel to meetings and dissemination events/conferences in support of grant-funded projects and collaborations.
